NOTICE.

Persons sending any articles to their friends in the army of Virginia, are warned to direct the same to the care of Col. G. W. Chipley, stating whom for, and send to no one else. Also, mark or paint the names on the box, and not use a card, which is very liable to get rubbed off and the box lost. Col. Chipley has charge of the North Carolina Depot at Richmond, and he will take special pains to send the supplies to any of the boys from the State, wherever they may be located.

of Accomac county are subjected to the most cruel and barbarous treatment. A few days ago, an altercation and scuffle occurred between a other day which was duly published in that very paroled Confederate soldier named Bell and a Federal soldier; during the fight the Constable of the Drummondtown District, Wm. Addison Kellum, came out of the Court House, separated the combatants, and commanded peace as a civil officer. Another Yankee soldier, coming up at the moment, struck the Constable over the head with the butt end of his musket, while a Yankee officer split open the Constable's skull with a sword as he fell to the ground. Constable Kellum was then taken into a neighboring house, where he died within a few hours afterwards. Several citizens, who witnessed the shocking murder of Mr Kellum, and expressed blow you and your City to h -. their horror at such lawlessness, were arrested. Among them was George S. Rogers and his son Lewis Rogers. These gentlemen said to bystanders that they thought they were living under a civil Government, which they had taken the oath to support, but such conduct and scenes were an outrage on all Government. A large number of citizens of Accomac were imprisoned for various political offences, and females as well as men were not allowed to utter a word in condemnation of the Yankee Government or the Yankee hirelings

SWORD IN THE HEAVENS.

We are informed by gentlemen whose veracity cannot be questioned, that on the 22d instant, near Grooversville, Georgia, a phenomenon of remarkable significance was witnessed in the heavens at about 4 o'clock in the evening. It was a perfect representation of a sword-handle, blade and point all visible. The blade was red and the Northeast and the handle to the Southwest. It was high up in the heavens, appearing to the eye about twenty feet long and two feet broad. Soon after it was witnessed, a wind springing up, heavy clouds appeared and screened it from view.

We are not one of those who attach a peculiar significance to remarkable dreams, believe in witchcraft, or view every celestial phenomenon as an omen of good or evil. But no similar phenomenon to the one in question has been witnessed for many generations, and we are, therefore, owing to the peculiar circumstances surrounding us, in clined to regard it as significant.

Flavius Josephus, in his history of the Jews, refers to a similar appearance in the heavens just previous to the destruction of Jerusalem. There is no doubt that Goldsborough was drunk when he penned the infamous production. But all surprised at such a beastly exhibition of himself by a Lincoln Admiral, because we can expect nothing better from such a source. But what will be thought in Europe of a naval commander who could, under any conceivable circumstances, degrade himself, his profession, and his country, by such a vulgar, filthy, blackguard production, and of a press which could speak of it in the laudatory terms in which the Union notices it? Goldsborough is but a type of the whole warrior race to which he belongs. He is about as fair a specimen of Northern chivalry and decency as any that could be selected, and the Union is a faithful reflector of the spirit and conduct of the Lincoln war journals. We hope that the "Admiral's" valiant and exquisitely published paper will find its way across the Atlantic, so that the people of Europe may be thus much further enlightened as to the character of the enemy whom the South has to deal with .- Petersburg Express.
